Sherman's March to the sea.
[From Mr. Davis' History of the War.]
Since Alva's atrocious cruelties to the non-combatant population of the Low Countries, in the sixteenth century, the history of war records no instances of such barbarous cruelty as that which the order of Sherman for all civilians to vacate Atlanta within five days was destined to perpetrate. It involved the immediate expulsion from their homes and only means of subsistence of thousands of unprotected women and children, whose husbands and fathers were either in the army, in Northern prisons or had died in battle. In vain did the Mayor and corporate authorities of Atlanta appeal to Sherman to revoke or modify this inhuman order, representing in pitiful language: "the woe, the horror and the suffering, not so be described by words," which its execution would inflict on helpless women and infant children. His only reply was: "I give full credit to your statements of the distress that will be occasioned by it, and yet I shall not revoke my order, because my orders are not designed to meet the humanitarian of the case."
At this time appointed the women and children were expelled from their homes, and as they were passed within our lines complaint was generally made that the federal officers and men who were sent to guard them had robbed them of the few articles of value they had been permitted to take from their homes. The cowardly dishonesty of its execution was in perfect harmony with the temper and spirit of the order.
Still further on Mr. Davis speaks as follows touching the burning of Columbia, S. C.:
"It is the only instance of such barbarity perpetrated by General Sherman's army, his effort to escape the responsibility might be more successful, because more plausible; but when the eloquence of his exploits came exultingly true that the line of his march could be traced by the burning dwelling houses and by the wail of women and children pines to death to die from starvation and exposure; the death of winter, his plea of 'foot and hand' in the case of the city of Columbia cannot free him from the reputation which he earned from the reputation of his army in the Thirty Years' War, and which, even at that period of the world's civilization, sullied the fame of that otherwise great soldier."

PELVY WORRIES.—What a blessed thing it is that we can forget. To-day's troubles look large, but a week hence they will be forgotten and buried out of sight. Says one writer: "If you keep a book and daily put down the things that worry you and see what becomes of them, it would be a blessing to you. You show a thing to annoy you just as you allow a fly to settle on you and plagues you; and you lose your temper, (or rather get it), for when you are surrounded with temper they are said to have lost it, and you justify yourselves for being thrown off your balance by causes which you do not understand. But if you would see what it was that threw you off your balance before breakfast, and put it down in a little book, and follow it up and follow it out and ascertain what becomes of it, you would see what a fool you were in the matter. The art of forgetting is a blessed art, but the art of overlooking is quite as important. And if we should take time to write down the original progress and outcome of a few of our troubles it will make us as ashamed of the fuss we make over them that we should be glad to drop such things and bury them at once in eternal forgetfulness. Life is too short to be worn out in petty worries, frettings, hatred and vexation."

A VOICE FROM FAUQUIER COUNTY, VA.—One customer writes thus. After a careful test for the past two weeks, myself and wife pronounce your BEST RESULTS PATENT PROCESS FLOUR as fine a flour as we have ever used, and feel confident there is no grade of flour manufactured that equals yours.
